Program ID: - CPG14
(From: 20th to 21st August, 2018)

Relevance of the Program:-

Changes in Information and Communication Technologies (ICT) are happening at lightning speed and touching the lives of practically everyone in many areas of life. Growth in information technology has made life different for people both at work places and at personal levels.

Consequently, there are three distinct trends that have arisen. One is that buyers of insurance are becoming increasingly comfortable doing purchase and financial transactions online from the comfort of their homes, due to the increased ease of use and security measures that the internet provides. The second trend is that business houses including insurers are becoming increasingly dependent upon electronic channels to connect with this customer segment. This is happening for more and more core business areas, especially in marketing and servicing. The third trend relates to companies engaged in various facilitation activities like selling on the internet, collecting data using electronic networks, processing data, developing software etc.

All these trends have brought large chunks of personal and business data into the cyber space and exposed them to multiple eyeballs, hands and machines. Data breaches have become facts of life. Today the challenge of protecting data is practically on everybody. The situation makes it imperative for everyone to understand their cyber risk exposure. As a risk management partner, insurers need to work with multiple situations, understand exposure to the risk of cyber crime and the entailing liabilities.

In this background, the College of Insurance aims to provide insurers with a strong theoretical framework on cyber crime and related Liabilities to bring in a higher level of professionalism in their work. The program seeks to broaden their vision, reconnect them to the fundamentals, acquaint them to the changing market practice; and in the process broaden their professional and academic horizon by exposing them to experts in multiple related spheres.
