

Virtual Training Session on Basics of Health Insurance - Preventive Care (CVT-BHI) – 7th January 2022

Health Insurance is one of the most challenging areas of insurance over the last 20 years. There are many to be covered, and there are many claims to be paid. Insurers are struggling to increase the spear and also keep the portfolio sustainable. While the claims ratio have been hovering around 100% for many insurers, more and more health insurers are realizing the importance of using loss prevention and loss minimization techniques in health insurance. Insured who take care of themselves need to be rewarded for their good behavior and those who do not may have to pay a higher price. Either way, saving a life, averting a sickness and rendering a medical condition less complicated are matters that make the health insurance business more viable for insurers and improve the health of the society.

College of Insurance has designed this programme for serious minded insurance professionals who wish to understand the practical concerns of loss prevention and loss minimization and how insurers are actually practicing these out on the field.
