Relevance of the Program:-

Insurance companies find it important to have robust reinsurance programmes for managing the risks that they insure professionally. For this purpose, insurers have to design, develop and implement appropriate reinsurance strategies that would enhance their capacity to accept more than what their financial resources would ordinarily allow. They need to also improve their capital-efficiency, spread their risks, and protect their account from catastrophic events and abnormally large losses.

A Reinsurance Treaty is understood as an agreement whereby a ceding company agrees to cede all risks within a specific class of insurance to a reinsurance company. The reinsurer, in turn, agrees to indemnify the ceding company of all such risks. Often, the treaty applies even to those policies that have not yet been written, if they pertain to the pre-agreed class.

Transfer of risks from the ceding company without responsible underwriting at the ceding company's underwriting level, can leave the risk assuming reinsurer exposed to the risk of inadequate evaluation of risks. This can be a cause of worry for both the ceding company and the reinsurers, which are mutually dependent entities needing to measure up to the expectations of the other, in terms of matching skillsets as well as professional and ethical standards.

The College of Insurance has designed this programme so that professionals dealing with reinsurance are able to appreciate and address these challenges in a professional manner.
